user control in form in WPF? I have a simple WPF user control (see below). Can I add it to a form (WPF) and then show it when I click on a button in the form? It must be a 2D user control (no 3D). I have my own app running under debug, but I don't see how I could add this control to a form inside my own project. I'm not using any XAML to render the control since its only 1 frame so the control has to be from code (I don't know if I need XAML to do this). A: There are two ways to deal with that:
Create a class that derives from FrameworkElement and pass that to the control. Call the element's Render method on your form and it will be displayed. Posted on by denverabc A small group of
