What's New in the?

Advertisements gillyan 3 years ago IPChanger was a great app that worked on my old PC when Windows 7 was new! Unfortunately it would fail one day when Win 7 came out and the old IPs became invalid, forcing me to go through all the hosts and IPs in my lmhosts file again and again. Now with the release of Win 8 I was looking for something like the previous and found a new app (IPChanger Pro). It is great, and updated/adds support for Windows 8, and it does exactly what it says. BINGO! PCMANFUSION and this IP changer. Thanks too!! (In reply to Gillyan from comment #1)

It's not to difficult to do that. Guys, I've tried out the IPChanger PRO and loved it! The program does exactly what it says. I only had to replace the 3 invalid IP's in the hosts file which was so easy and so easy to do. For those of you with Windows 7, I strongly recommend this FREE (for new) application. I hope to see further improvements on this app. I do have one question however, which is why aren't the invalid IP's removed from the lmhosts file? Many of the comments here would suggest that could happen. Is there any free program that can do that job or remove invalid IP's from lmhosts file automatically? Thanks. It's a simple task to replace your invalid IP's in an INI file. To do that, you could use a simple text editor such as Notepad or Notepad++. To save your replacements to disk, save the file as INI (or any text file extension), choose overwrite, and then save. To replace your IP's, use Notepad to open your INI file. Find the IP you want to change, open it in a notepad tab, and copy and paste your new IP
